

Factors determining stress among medical graduates doing house job.

Sajid Mahsud

Student of B.B.A (hons)
Riphah international university Islamabad
sajidmahsud@yahoo.com

Ali Kiyani

Student of B.B.A (hons)
Riphah international university Islamabad
alee_kiyani@hotmail.com

and

Bilal Khan

Student of B.B.A (hons)
Riphah international university Islamabad
bilal_bba_3@yahoo.com

ABSTRACT

The purpose of this research is to find out factors which determine stress among medical graduates doing house job. Data was collected from 119 doctors doing house job in different hospitals in Pakistan through questionnaire. Results indicate that salary and long working hours are important factors that determine stress among medical graduates doing house job. stress among doctors can be reduced by implementing strategies in hospitals about good salaries and manageable working duration for medical graduates doing house job.